While India gained independence on August 15, 1947, the Nizam of Hyderabad, Mir Osman Ali Khan, chose to keep his princely state independent. Following a period of local resistance against the Nizam and the armed Razakar militia, the Indian government launched a military action code-named Operation Polo on September 13, 1948. The Hyderabad State Forces formally surrendered on September 17, 1948, bringing an end to Nizam rule.
